

Biography

Terry Lines

Born and raised in Portsmouth UK, Terry was first inspired to pick up the bass after seeing Paul McCartney performing with The Beatles on TV.

He began his musical career playing with various bands in local pubs and clubs. In the late 70s, Terry met Steve Hampton, and together they set up a band called The Rams, where they wrote and performed their own material. The Rams became a well-respected success, supporting Ginger Baker and The Vapors at The Marquee Club in London.

In the early 90s, Terry took up the role of Paul McCartney, where he has since played in various Beatles tribute bands. The role came naturally to him being a lifelong Beatles fan and a left-handed player, just like Paul! He has performed all over the world playing his idol, including Europe, Asia, USA, and South America.

Aside from The Beatles, his other musical influences include The Jam, Elvis Costello, and XTC.
